

Assessment Challenges

Workplace Assessments face a variety of challenges. One of the top challenges is the lack of standardization in the assessment process. Another challenge is ensuring that assessments are fair and unbiased where there are cultural or linguistic differences between assessors and the individuals being assessed, or where there are power imbalances in the workplace. A third challenge is ensuring that assessments are conducted in a timely and efficient manner. QMR's Practitioners use standardized assessment processes to help identify improvements and common language to address issues impacting employee well-being. QMR works with our Practitioners to scope the level of effort and timeline to keep the project on track and help your organization create a positive and supportive work environment.
